The Deloit Case

Winnipeg, April 1, '01.

London, March 31.—The Weekly Dispatch reports the story published in the Daily Express of Saturday that Lord Salisbury is suffering from a kidney affection which is likely to incapacitate him some time and says it bears that the premier's illness has taken on unfavorable a turn that his proposed visit to the Riviera is now almost hopeless and the announcement of his resignation of the premiership and his retirement from political life may be anticipated before the end of April. The Dispatch adds: "The doctors have pronounced that Lord Salisbury is suffering from Bright's disease, a disease which is a grave one and is being taken of the case. Lord Salisbury is so anxious to prevent the nature of his illness from being made public, that some of the eminent specialists called in are allowed to sign a bulletin. No bulletin sanctioned by the doctors has been issued. The premier's condition suddenly became worse a week ago that Sir Richard Douglas Powell, Dr. Walker and other physicians were hastily summoned in order to avert a crisis. A special prescription was made up the application of which checked the approaching complications, but the premier's condition for the last day or two has disappeared all the medical men. One of the earliest callers on Saturday was a special messenger from the King. The family last evening expressed a hope that Lord Salisbury might make the journey to the Riviera, but the physicians are loath to express an opinion except in so far as forbidding any definite arrangements to be made for the present.

The Northern Pacific and Great Northern railways have heavily cut rates to North Pacific points.

PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, March 16.

The budget speech delivered on Thursday by the minister of finance, Hon. Mr. Fildes, was the shortest in a year, and as well one of the most satisfactory. It was the story of increasing trade, and consequently increasing revenues; of liberal expenditure and of a six million dollar surplus; of improved and improving financial standing both of the citizens and of the nation, set forth in plain, but forceful language and by well-arranged figures. A declaration for stability of the tariff and a warning that the present rate of trade increase cannot always continue were the two features of the minister's remarks. A feature of the minister's remarks, and the minister himself, told and the minister occupied less than two hours in making his statement as to this country and finances of the country. He introduced no controversial matter, his manner was courteous and his language plain and moderate, but thoroughly effective. While there were some points of difference on both sides of the tariff question as to the tariff, it is possibly better all around that the idea of permanence should be established—that the idea should not get abroad that the tariff can be tinkered by gull or influence. No doubt there are—as there always must be—exceptions and imperfections in the tariff, but better that these should be adjusted than that great injury should be done by introducing a measure of general uncertainty.

The principal demands for increase of the duties were by the lumber men and oat men, both of whom were apparently a very good case. The lumber men can claim very justly that they are entitled to the importation of a revenue tariff, and that the present rate of trade increase cannot always continue were the two features of the minister's remarks. A feature of the minister's remarks, and the minister himself, told and the minister occupied less than two hours in making his statement as to this country and finances of the country. No doubt there are—as there always must be—exceptions and imperfections in the tariff, but better that these should be adjusted than that great injury should be done by introducing a measure of general uncertainty.

by the answer of Mr. Chamberlain only last summer to a representative Canadian delegation. The minister, read from the official reports of the proceedings of the delegation showing that Lord Salisbury refused to discuss the question at all, and that Mr. Chamberlain "in a quiet conversational way endeavored to show that no progress could be made until the colonies abandoned protection as against Great Britain."

The following are some of the statements presented by the minister of finance in the course of his remarks:

Total Receipts:

	1898-9.	1899-1900.	Increase.
Customs	$26,316,841	$2,374,147	2,307,306
Excise	9,641,227	9,668,475	27,248
Post Office	5,185,717	5,308,535	122,818
Miscellaneous	8,549,104	9,588,327	1,039,223
	$49,712,889	$51,029,501	$1,316,612

POST OFFICE.
In January, 1901, under the two-cent rate, the revenue of the post department was $208,259, while in the corresponding month of January, 1898, under the three-cent rate the revenue was $208,941, showing that now, under the two-cent rate we are receiving more money in the way of revenue in the post office department than we formerly received when the three-cent rate prevailed.

GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS.
Under the head of miscellaneous revenues there is a considerable increase, the largest item being in respect to railways. There is an increase of $28,314 under that head. It is well to remember, that, while we are spending largely increased sums upon the Intercolonial Railway in particular, we are also having largely increased receipts, and it may be well to take up the year's operations in comparison between 1899 and 1900. The revenue of the Intercolonial Railway in 1899, being the year ending the 30th June, was $2,497,644. The revenue for last year was $4,552,071, showing an increase in the receipts of the Intercolonial Railway between 1899 of $1,594,431.

SURPLUS.
Our total revenue for the year which has passed was $51,029,992. Our total expenditure, chargeable to consolidated fund, was $49,712,889, leaving a surplus of $1,316,612. This is our total expenditure for what may be described as the ordinary purposes of government was $42,975,275.15, a surplus on the year's operations of so much as $8,044,717.51. This surplus, Mr. Speaker, was the largest that has ever been known in the history of the Dominion of Canada. I have prepared a statement showing the surplus and deficits for the last four years, and the following are the figures:
In 1896 there was a deficit of $519,981.44, in 1897 there was a surplus of $1,712,712.31, in 1898 there was a surplus of $4,837,745, and in 1900 there was the surplus that I have just mentioned of $8,044,717.51. Our surplus has thus aggregated $14,615,173.17. Deduct $519,981.44, the deficit for the first year which was, however, hardly under control, but we will pass that point now—deduct the deficit of that year from the surplus of succeeding years, and we find that there has been a net surplus for the four years as between the revenue and the ordinary expenses of government of $14,095,191.46.

CAPITAL EXPENDITURES.
So far I have dealt with what we call the expenditure on consolidated fund account which represents the ordinary expenses of government. There is, of course, another class of expenditure which figures in our account, which is commonly called capital expenditure, including public works, railways, railway subsidies and various special items of an unusual character. These expenditures for the year ended June 30, 1899, were as follows:
Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island Railways, $3,308,894.31
Canals, $2,520,543.68
Public works, 1,089,827.25
Dominion lands, 199,470.69
Militia, 230,850.51
Canadian Pacific Railway, 236,126.12
Total, $7,465,843.24

To this must be added for railway subsidies, including $340,000 paid during that year to the Crown's West Pass Railway, $725,720.35, and there is a further item to be added, being the expenses of the South African contingent and the Halifax garrison, amounting to $1,547,623.74. These capital and special expenses for the year amounted to $9,742,187.33. Now, with these large expenditures for the liberal maintenance of the public services, and large expenditures for railways and public works, and with special expenditures in connection with the South African war, it would not have been a matter of surprise if it had been necessary to increase the public debt. Yet, we have a surprising statement to make, we have provided for all these large expenditures, and that we have been able not to increase the public debt, but actually to reduce the public debt, to the extent of $779,339.71. The net debt on June 30, 1899, was $26,273,446.05; the net debt at the same date in 1900 was $25,493,801.89, showing a decrease of $779,339.71, as already stated.

CURRENT REVENUES.
Turning now to the affairs of the current year, which is to close on the 30th June next, I find that our revenue up to the 10th March was $34,942,177.05, an increase over the corresponding date last year of $1,227,093.01. The customs revenue, which is always an item of chief importance, remains up to date substantially the same as it was a year ago, and I do not expect that from this time forward we can expect any material increase in that item. In railways and post office, as we have seen, there has been a considerable increase, and we anticipate that there will be some further increase before the year closes. I estimate that the total revenue for the current year, in end of June 30, next, will be $52,750,000, or an increase of $1,737,000 over the revenue of the previous year.

CURRENT EXPENDITURE.
Coming now to the expenditure account for the current year. The expenditure up to March 10, on consolidated funds, was $27,731,022.04, so that, if we had an increased revenue, we have also had some increase in expenditure as well. We have some supplementary estimates yet to bring forward for the current year which will, of course, swell our existing appropriations. I estimate that when the railway affairs are closed, including these supplementary appropriations, we shall find the expenditure chargeable to consolidated fund amounting to $27,731,022.04, or an increase of $1,737,000 over the revenue of the previous year.
